

TERMS & CONDITIONS

- I understand that there are risks involved in the activity I will be undertaking. The activity occurs in a natural environment where unpredictable and uncontrollable events could occur that could possibly cause death or serious harm.
- Passengers agree that they are carried at their own risk and Queenstown Paraflights will not be liable in any way for any injury incurred as a result of being carried. Passengers should be aware that in New Zealand any claims for personal injury are limited by a government scheme and passengers should obtain their own insurance should they wish to do so.
- Please advise a member of our staff if you have a physical condition that may affect the enjoyment of or your safety on the flight with us.
- We suggest that passengers do not take any personal property or equipment in the air, however if passengers choose to do so then this property or equipment is carried at the PASSENGER'S OWN RISK and Queenstown Paraflights will not be liable in any way for any loss to such property or equipment however caused.
- For the safety and comfort of all passengers all instructions given by the captain and deckhand must be followed and parents/guardians are responsible for ensuring that their children do the same.
