Behaviour and Expectations

Code of Conduct

Members of the Australian Contingent are reminded that the Scout Law and Promise always applies.

This code of conduct is intended to create a safe environment for everyone in the Australian Contingent.

Be Respectful

1. This code of conduct relies on an understanding of consent. The Australian Contingent holds that:
2. Consent has a legal meaning. Where sexual activities are concerned, a person may not legally consent until they are 16 years of age in New Zealand; a person is also considered unable to consent if their judgement may be impaired by drugs, alcohol or fatigue.
3. Whilst travelling as a member of the Australian Contingent, there should be no physical or sexual interaction of any kind between children aged 17 and under with members aged 18+. This includes those already in existing relationships.
4. Consent is given freely and voluntarily. This means that consent is not given where there is any coercion; or where negative consequences of withholding consent are real or imagined.
5. Consent is clear, unambiguous, positive, and enthusiastic. Receiving no response is not consent. Reluctant acceptance and/or submission is not consent.
6. Consent and sexual activity. Any unwanted sexual activity, or unwanted touching of a person's body by another person may be sexual assault. For example, it can include kissing or inappropriate touching of a person's breasts, bottom or genitals, or even performing a sexual activity in front of another person.
7. Respecting others means that all youth and adult members are entitled to privacy.
8. Physical privacy. All members are entitled to have their personal space respected, and members must not make physical contact with any person, or their belongings without clear and unambiguous consent. The Australian Contingent expects every member to have their own bedding and to respect bedding belonging to someone else as that person's personal space. It is the position of the Australian Contingent that Scouting activities are not an appropriate place for sexual activities.
9. Visual privacy. All members are entitled to have privacy for themselves and their belongings and must respect the privacy of others in return. This means that without consent it is not appropriate to observe them as they conduct private activities. It is not appropriate to search their belongings, or speak to others about what we have seen, deliberately or accidentally.
10. Audible privacy. All members are entitled to have privacy and must respect the privacy of others. This means that without consent it is not appropriate to listen to them as they conduct private activities or conversations. It is not appropriate to speak to others about what we have heard, deliberately or accidentally.
11. Digital privacy. Taking and sharing of intimate photo or videos of young people is a crime.

Regardless of age, taking intimate photo or videos without consent is a crime, and sharing of intimate photo or videos without consent is a crime. For information about image-based abuse, you can visit the e-safety website (https://esafety.gov.au/image-based-abuse). For any photos, it is respectful to ask if people want to be photographed, before taking a photo of them.

Respect for others in this context means respecting their privacy; respecting the decisions that they make in providing consent; and respecting their emotional and mental health.

Respecting others and the program

1. As a member you should show respect to yourself, as well as all other members, Leaders, volunteers and external operators, as well as the members of the public.
2. You should respect the environment and community.
3. Bullying, discrimination, harassment or assault of any kind has no place in Scouting. You should not engage in any of these activities and are encouraged to report any instances of this to a trusted adult.
4. You should comply with all reasonable directions from supporting adults and external operators.
5. You will have a decent amount of freedom during the event; however, there are many points when it very important to be at the right place at the right time (especially for transport). If you are asked to be somewhere, you have a responsibility to be there on time and follow all instructions.

Failure to follow this code of conduct will result in disciplinary action. Depending on the severity of the offence, possible actions could range from missing activities to being sent home at your own expense. Not knowing the code of conduct is never an excuse and it is your responsibility to know and understand these rules that are put in place to keep the event safe.

Remember to have fun and make the most of your time overseas; it's not just a two-night camp so don't burn yourself out. Look after your physical and mental wellbeing and look out for the other members. They are your friends, and the event will be far more enjoyable together.

Do What is Right

Australian Contingent members are trusted to follow the rules and ensure that others also follow these rules. In this instance it may mean reminding our friends that their behaviour is inappropriate or reporting that behaviour by speaking with a trusted adult.

Doing what is right may include seeking assistance for others who have been using drugs or alcohol.

Believe in Yourself

If you would like support in discussing, challenging, or reporting inappropriate behaviour, please speak with a trusted adult or a member of the Health & Wellbeing Team.

Should you wish to report a matter anonymously, you can complete the Australian Contingent Online Incident Form.

Travel Information

Travel Teams

When our Contingent is travelling between Australia and New Zealand you will be working together and traveling with your Travel Team. They are your Patrol while we're travelling.

When you arrive at the airport you will check-in with your Travel Team. You must stay with your Travel Team until you check in with your patrol in Auckland. On the way home, as we will leave the jamboree site to start heading home you will check-in with your Travel Team, and you will work with your Travel Team until we arrive back home in Australia.

It is important that while we are travelling you stick with your Travel Team. If you need to leave your Travel Team, for example to go to the bathroom, make sure you use the buddy system, and tell your Team Captain you are going.

Coming Home

It's time to head home after our epic adventure! The below guide tells you the process we will follow to travel home, and a little taste of the fun we will have along the way!

Preparing for Travel

- In the morning we will depart Jamboree and travel to Rainbows End Theme Park
- When we are leaving Jamboree you will check in with your Travel Team. You will be working with your Travel Team for the rest of the journey home.
- We will spend the afternoon at Rainbows End Theme Park having an amazing time!
- Some people will head straight to the airport after Rainbows End, others will go to our accommodation for the night to have dinner and pack. Your travel team captains will make sure you know exactly where you are going and when.
- For our trip to the theme park you need to wear you Australian Contingent Shirt, Australian Scarf and ID tag.
- Make sure your bags are packed and ready to travel:
    - All medication in your hand luggage
    - All liquids, gels or aerosols in your hand luggage must be under 100ml (or 100g for gels and aerosols)
    - You must have a change of clothes in your hand luggage
    - Any devices, spare batteries or powerbanks must be in your hand luggage
    - First aid kits, sharp objects and other dangerous goods must go in your checked luggage.

- There will be no duty free shopping.
- Make sure you stay with your Travel Team all the way through the airport.
- Before you leave the airport with your family you must check-out with your Travel Team Captain.
